« We are very enthusiastic about the renewed confidence of our investors in the company and products » declares Jerome Martinez, President and CEO of Novagali Pharma, who adds « this series C financing round will allow us to pursue high potential projects among which some might be commercially available by the end of 2007 and to prepare the company in such perspectives ».

Novagali Pharma has a unique patented technology platform Novasorb™ based on cationic emulsions which was instrumental in building a significant pipeline with various products at final stages of development. For the treatment of dry eye, Novagali Pharma is preparing the registration in Europe and USA of Cationorm™ (Nova23006/33). In parallel, Nova22007, a Cyclosporine A cationic emulsion, is in phase III clinical study and Nova21027 will enter into phase II clinical trial for glaucoma treatment.

This new fund raising allows Novagali Pharma to finance clinical trials, speed up other development projects such as Eyeject™ - a novel technology for intra and peri-ocular delivery of drugs - and research programs which include treatment of retinopathies.

The proceeds provide the company with the flexibility to adapt its structure in anticipation of eventual product commercialization by itself or with a partner.
